ABSTRACT

The main goal of this study is to eveluate public companies which has been privatized in the process of reconstruction of the state on the sample of Nazilli Sümerbank. For this aim, an emprical study has been applied on the basis of the previous studies and literature by using the secondary data method. As a conclusion, it is preferred to ask the questions of “when is privatization carried on, which field is suitable for the privatization, which conditions should be used and which companies should be privatized?” instead of “is privatization necessary or not?” about the privatization which has gained importance for the process of change in the world.
